The Green Mesquite BBQ at 1400 Barton Springs Rd. started out as a hamburger and watermelon joint named "Dunks." Austin used to have semi-pro baseball team named "The Austin Senators" and Cactus Pryor was the "play-by-play" or, as they used to be called, "the color announcer." You could walk over from Disch Field (now a parking lot next to Palmer Auditorium) after the big game and argue the lack of 20x20 vision of the visiting umpire or the other team's lucky catches. Sitting down to your burger and watermelon at Dunks, under the pecan trees, you and yours could talk about the game and count fireflies at no extra charge.

About the time Harry S. Truman was handing over the country's reins to Ike, Jerry and Bobbie Jacobs turned "Dunks" into "Jerry Jacobs Pit Barbecue System." Jerry was known to endure long days and nights making sure his brisket was smoked at least 16 hours. He added the sign over the pit room "EXCELLENT COFFEE." The extra long sign seemed to fit the coffee and the building. At The Green Mesquite BBQ & More we still try and remember everyone's name and smile when we see you again or for the first time. Letters from customers are welcome...so write! Everybody is still welcome as long as they are polite (House Rules). We were lucky enough to inherit many of the customers and employees from Jerry, Bobbie, Harold, and Pee Wee's times. We are thankful for that. Remember to say "hello" when you come into the Green Mesquite and "goodbye" when you have to go. Give us your opinion if you've a mind to (you'll be asked so be honest). We hope you enjoy your BBQ or your burger and thanks for coming in.
